

Said a young Southern matron the other day, in writing of her mother: "Mamma is as young and pretty as ever. The same picture in every thing, and enjoys it all. The spirit of eternal youth is in her. And that is what the Bible must mean when it speaks of the woman whose children rise up and call her blessed, for surely no higher praise can be accorded to any woman than to say that she is possessed of 'the spirit of eternal youth.' It means that she has never lost the care and the fret and the burden of daily responsibility; that she is a companion of her spirit or quench its flow. It means that through maturity, past middle age, to the sunset period of life, she has held fast to her ideals and to her faith in the gentleness and kindness of humanity.

"Except ye become as little children," said the Master, "ye cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven." The woman who is eternally young is like a little child in her faith, in her purity and in the trust she reposes in all around her. It is easy for her to extract pleasure from all the flowers that bloom in her pathway. She knows nothing of the weariness which clogs the pulses of the worldling, for the freshness of the morning still abides with her. She is a true philosopher. If she has little, she is content; if much, she is deeply thankful and still content. Because she carries in her heart "the spirit of eternal youth," she is a companion of young people and is never a restraint or a chilling influence. She listens with sympathy to their confidences, enters into all their pleasures, and so "enjoys life to the utmost."

If all women could possess "the spirit of eternal youth," what a different world this would be! For youth in the spiritual, as in the material, is the most beautiful of all attributes. The youth of the year, made manifest in spring, will stir the mind of even the dulllest to admiration and wonder. "The spirit of eternal youth" has in it the garnered sweetness of many springtimes and the promise of all spring, which is immortality. On the ground of being companionable alone, one would imagine that a woman would seek the source of that youth which, once found, looks eternally from the soul through the eyes, and speaks always from the heart through the lips. The face from which "the light of eternal youth" shines is a magnet that draws to itself debaters, is sweetest and gentlest in others, and creates around and about itself an atmosphere of goodness and tenderness. As the woman who is young in spirit is so because she has held fast the ingenuousness and sincerity of her childhood and girlhood, she thinks no evil of others. She looks not at their weaknesses and shortcomings, but sees them through idealism, and acts up to what she imagines them to be. And others, seeing and knowing what her standard expects, are moved to live up to it.

Mrs. Browning pictures a woman who possessed the spirit of eternal youth when she wrote "My Kate," or when she made a portrait of Elizabeth in these lines:

"And all voices that address her
Softly, slumber every word, as if speaking to a bird,
And all hearts do pray, 'God love her!'
Ay, and certes, in good sooth we may all be sure He doth!"

The Week Just Ended.

The Monday German had its fourth dance in Masonic Temple last Monday evening. The dance, which was one of the gayest of the series, was led by Colonel Jo Lane Stern, dancing with Miss Hattie Shields.

Among the out-of-town guests of the evening were Miss Margaret Nell, of Hagerstown, Md.; Miss Bessie Merritt, of Norfolk; Miss Nickett McMillan, of Woodley, Md.; and Miss Mary Stuart Cooke, of Roanoke; Messrs. William W. Old, of Norfolk; Mr. Robert Withers, of Suffolk; and Mr. Poyntz, of Oxford, England.

Mr. Michael J. Tarnowsky lectured most entertainingly before the members of Woman's Club Monday afternoon on "Sculpture," and said he considered Houdon's statue of Washington the finest work of art in America. Mr. de Tarnowsky was introduced by Mrs. E. V. Valentine, the chairman of the afternoon.

Monday afternoon the annual tea of the Junior Hollywood Memorial Association was given, from 5 to 7, in Lee Camp Hall, decorated with Confederate red and white. Southern songs by Mrs. C. M. Miller and Mr. Walke, who were accompanied, rendered the occasion most enjoyable. Refreshments were served by a very pretty girls belonging to the association.

Thursday afternoon the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities gave its tea in the rooms of Virginia Historical Society. A very large number of guests were present. The rooms looked very pretty with flowers and red shaded candles. The receiving party included Mrs. E. V. Valentine, Mrs. C. A. Swanson, Mrs. John B. Lightfoot, Mrs. Charles B. Ball, Mrs. W. R. Cox and Mrs. William A. Anderson. The committee of arrangements, Mrs. John H. Southall, Mrs. James Alston Cabell, Mrs. William Bentley and Miss Nannie Jones, were heartily congratulated on their entire success.

Thursday and Friday evenings society went en masse to Belvidere Hall, where a burlesque was given by the Warpath, given under the direction of Miss Sally Deane and Miss Ella Binford, proved a delightful and mirth-provoking success. In the different booths were congregated most of the Richmond girls belonging to the smart set, under the care of the most attractive young matrons in the city. Needless to say that the burlesque was a great center of interest.

Nat Goodwin, at the Academy Friday and Saturday evenings, and at Saturday matinee, packed the Academy with a fashionable audience. Box and logo parties being in evidence.

Mecklenburg Social News.
THE MECKLENBURG, CHASE CITY, VA., February 1.—Fox-hunting and quail-shooting have been vying with each other in popularity, while saddle picnics, riding parties and bridge and euchre come in for their share of the season's pleasures. The weather continues ideal and quail-hunting is now at its best.

Mr. J. Dayton Voorhees, of Camden, N. J., came this week to join his friends, Mr. and Mrs. S. Bergen, Hadfield, N. J., who are here on a visit to a party, including Miss Marion Scull, Camden, N. J.; Misses Biddle, Mr. Robert Biddle, of Horton, N. C.; Mr. Wm. C. Smith, Philadelphia. This party has been here for a week or more. They spend the entire day in the field, the women proving themselves as enthusiastic sportsmen as the men. A saddle picnic given by the party with apples, potatoes, etc., roasted at the open campfire, and the noonday luncheon as the place de resistance, was a pleasant recent event. The entire party show an indefatigable hunting spirit, as on Monday they went on a fox hunt, and on their return spent the rest of the day quail shooting. The box was to leave at 10 o'clock, and a half, and Miss Biddle, first in the death, proudly brought back the brush.

One of the prominent social affairs of the week was on Friday, when Mrs. W. T. Hughes entertained the Woman's Club. The parlors were most beautifully decorated; pink was the prevailing color; refreshments, etc., being in the dainty color. A book content was a unique feature of the afternoon, and the very attractive prizes were won by Mrs. T. G. Boswell, of Richmond, and Mrs. P. H. Maddux, the latter drawing the consolation.

Several bridge parties have been enjoyed the days, while euchre also comes in for a small following.

During the recent cold weather the sun-parlors have been popular places. The usual sacred concert took place on Sunday evening, and Mrs. Alvin Smith, of Richmond, sang.

Mr. R. R. Roberts and Mr. R. R. Roberts, Jr., were here several days this week; received a grand welcome, and renewed pleasant acquaintances formed at their many former visits.

Dr. and Mrs. N. J. Wilson, of South Richmond, are here recuperating from recent illness.

Mr. W. T. Johnston, of Baltimore, is spending several days here.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Smith have come for an indefinite stay.

Mr. J. O. Carroll, of Raleigh, N. C., was a recent guest.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Mayer, of Richmond, are here for an extended sojourn. Mr. A. W. Miller, of Richmond, came this week.

Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Urquhart, of Richmond, recent popular guests, left this week.

The arrivals are daily increasing. Among the late ones are, U. P. Bully, Manchester; W. L. Dodson, Baltimore; S. H. Short, Petersburg; W. J. Stafford, Richmond; L. P. Putnam, Norfolk; E. G. Cutting, Durham; Jos. Bark, Baltimore; W. N. Askew, Philadelphia; W. J. Epps, Blackstone; E. S. Noyes, Richmond; O. G. Bailey, Lynchburg; John Hayes, Granite Falls; J. L. Hayes, Granite Falls; B. L.
